

THE FOCUS

A QUARTERLY BELTED GALLOWAY PUBLICATION

2025 JULY/AUGUST/SEPTEMBER

OUR MISSION

The object is to promote the Belted Galloway breed of cattle, to preserve the purity of the breed by maintaining pedigree records and data, to disseminate information relative to said breed of cattle and to carry on all legal and proper activities to effectuate the primary purpose of the corporation.

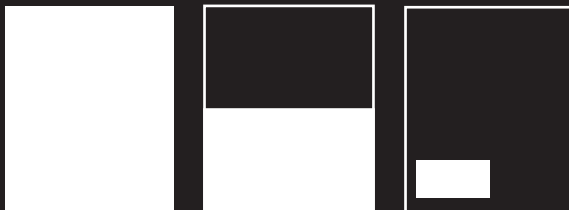

OUR VALUES

1. Provide resources for our membership to learn and develop necessary skills to thrive as a breed.
2. Promote the breed to both consumers as an excellent source of nutrition as well as other livestock producers as a profitable venture.
3. Increase the value of the breed by building the Belted Galloway brand awareness of their place in beef production.

A NOTE FROM THE EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR

Corinna Caron - Corinna, Maine

As autumn settles in, I want to take a moment to wish all of our Belted Galloway Society members a safe, productive, and rewarding fall calving season. This time of year brings with it the promise of new life in our pastures and the culmination of months of careful breeding decisions and dedicated herd management.

May your calving season be filled with healthy calves, smooth deliveries, and those quiet moments that remind us why we do what we do.

Fall also ushers in an exciting show season for many of our members. From county and state fairs to regional exhibitions and national events, these gatherings offer an opportunity to showcase the quality and versatility of the Belted Galloway breed. They also provide a chance to connect with fellow breeders, share ideas, and celebrate the hard work that happens year-round on farms across the country.

Whether you're in the barn, the pasture, or the show ring, know that your dedication strengthens the Belted Galloway community and keeps our breed thriving. I look forward to hearing your stories, seeing your cattle, and celebrating your successes in the months ahead.

The Belted Galloway Junior Nationals proved to be an unforgettable highlight of the year, bringing together junior members and their families from across the country for a weekend filled with competition, education, and camaraderie.

From the moment the first trailer rolled in, the energy and excitement were unmistakable. Juniors had the opportunity to showcase their cattle in the show ring, participate in skill-building contests, and take part in hands-on educational workshops. The event not only recognized excellence in the cattle and the juniors who raise them, but also provided valuable experiences in leadership, sportsmanship, and agricultural knowledge.

Families enjoyed the chance to connect, share ideas, and celebrate the achievements of their youth. The supportive atmosphere, combined with the hard work of volunteers, sponsors, and staff, made this year's Junior Nationals a resounding success.

The Junior Council is already looking ahead, working on plans to make the next Belted Galloway Junior Nationals even bigger and better. With the enthusiasm and dedication of our juniors and their families, the future of the breed is in very capable hands.

The Belted Galloway Society Annual Meeting is right around the corner! This is your opportunity to have an active voice in the future of our association by casting your vote for Council representatives.

You can vote by:

- Mailing in your ballot – Be sure it's postmarked by the deadline
- Completing the ballot emailed to you

Quick, easy, and just a few clicks away.

Your participation matters. Every vote helps shape the leadership and direction of our organization. We look forward to connecting at the Annual Meeting and moving forward together! Look for more info in this issue!

REGIONAL UPDATES

NEW ENGLAND GALLOWAY GROUP

PRESIDENT - TYLER JENNESS (NY)

Fall's rolling in fast, and honestly—where did the summer go? Feels like just yesterday we were kicking off show season, and now our members have already been on the road, hauling cattle all over New England. The fairs have been full of good people, hard work, and plenty of Belties turning heads in the ring.

Next up, we've got Fryeburg Fair on the horizon—the biggest Belted Galloway show in the country. Always a highlight of the year, and we can't wait to see everyone there.

Looking back, our Summer Meeting was a blast. Nothing better than catching up with folks who share the same passion for great cattle. Sure, the cattle bring us together, but it's really the people and the friendships that make this group what it is.

And we're not slowing down. This October, we'll team up with the Belted Galloway Society for the Annual Meeting at Aldermere Farm. It'll be a great chance to learn, swap stories, and hear updates on the breed. NEGG will also be hosting a silent auction, with proceeds going straight to support our youth programs. Helping the next generation get involved and carry the Beltie tradition forward is about as important as it gets, and every little bit makes a difference.

NEGG Upcoming Events:

October 17-18 - BGS Annual Meeting, Rockport, Maine

SOUTHWEST BELTED GALLOWAY ASSN.

PRESIDENT - TBD

Founded originally in 2010 as the Texas Belted Galloway Association, and reorganized and renamed to better serve the southwest geographical area in May of 2013, the Southwest Belted Galloway Association represents the largest number of Belted Galloway Cattle and owners in the United States. Comprising the surrounding states of New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska, North and South Dakota, Missouri and Iowa, states west of the Mississippi, the SBGA is a family and fellowship-oriented group of Belted Galloway Cattle owners and breeders that enthusiastically promote and preserve this majestic breed of cattle. Membership on the SBGA is open to all who have an interest in the Belted Galloway Breed of cattle.

Our Mission: The Southwest Belted Galloway Association, has as its primary objectives, the advocacy development and promotion of the Belted Galloway beef cattle. Recognizing the existence of the national organization, the Belted Galloway Society, Inc., the primary function of this corporation will be to provide education about and promote interest in the breed from a regional standpoint. The association will maintain high breeding standards of the Belted Galloway breed with emphasis placed on production and performance and other qualities characteristic of the Belted Galloway breed.

Please follow us on social media for updates throughout the year on upcoming events and other happenings within the Southwest Belted Galloway Association.

REGIONAL UPDATES

GREAT LAKES BELTED GALLOWAY ASSN.

PRESIDENT - TERRY WILLIS (IL)

One of the biggest annual activities for GLBGA is hosting a booth featuring Belted Galloways at Wisconsin's premier agricultural showcase—Wisconsin Farm Technology Days.

Farm Tech Days is the largest agricultural show in Wisconsin and among the biggest in the nation. The three-day event welcomed over 45,000 attendees, supported by more than 300 volunteers and 500 exhibitors.

Within the Wisconsin Cattlemen's Beef Tent, visitors explored eight different cattle breeds, exhibits of cattle-related products, and live cattle management demonstrations. A popular stop was the "Where's the Beef – Cattle By-Products" activity, which challenged attendees of all ages to identify everyday items made from cattle by-products.

The Belted Galloway booth, anchored by a cow-calf pair from Terry and Karlyn Etheridge (TEK Cattle), drew a steady stream of visitors. The booth provided an inviting opportunity for education about the breed, its attributes, and the unique qualities of Beltie beef. GLBGA and BGS literature was distributed, and countless conversations sparked interest in the future of the breed.

One of the most encouraging observations, noted by Karlyn Etheridge, was the number of young people eager to reconnect with agriculture. Some had deep rural roots, while others were simply seeking a better way of life. This renewed interest is a hopeful sign for the continued growth and sustainability of Belted Galloways.

As the late Hulk Hogan might say, "Beltiemanía is running wild." Everywhere we go, people remark on the quality of our cattle and their fit among the top ranks of any breed. Opportunities for breeders and suppliers of Beltie beef are expanding every day, and the demand continues to grow. This is truly our moment to shine.

We hope to see you at upcoming events, including the World Beef Expo and the American Royal, where GLBGA is proud to sponsor Belted Galloway open and junior shows.

COUNCIL MEMBER ELECTIONS

EMILY WILKERSON (IA)

Emily Wilkerson is originally from Adel, Iowa where raising Belted Galloway cattle started as a 4-H project and slowly developed into the family running a small herd of registered, purebred cattle. Emily now resides in Lacona, IA with her Fiancé Tyler where they are starting their own cattle operation. Growing up as an active member of the society Emily has had the opportunity to exhibit at local, regional, and national shows from elementary school to her last year of eligibility as a junior member in 2022. Emily attended Iowa State University graduating with a Bachelor of Science in Chemical Engineering as she finished her time as a junior member. Her passion to be innovative extends past her day job and into her everyday life raising and showing Belted Galloway cattle. She strives to continue to push the breed forward while maintaining the characteristics the breed is so well known for.

ELIZABETH EATON (OH)

Elizabeth Eaton resides in Sandusky, Ohio on a small farm, where she raises cow-calves and works as a veterinary technician. She received a degree in Animal Science from The Ohio State University focusing on beef production. Growing up in Maine, she would watch the Belted Galloways at Aldermere Farm. 10 years ago, she had the opportunity to work with and show her first Beltie heifer which sparked her passion for the breed. In 2017, she received the NEGG Heifer Project, starting her own herd of Belties, showing heifers across New England and marketing steers through county fairs. Currently, her cow herd has steadily expanded to nine head. She worked at Aldermere where she taught youth about cattle raising skills, Belted Galloways, mentored in showing, and assisted in herd management. Elizabeth served on the Junior Council board, as well as secretary and Heifer Project chair of NEGG. Elizabeth is very passionate about the Belted Galloway breed and is committed to promoting it to new breeders. She looks forward to expanding her work with fellow breeders, continuing to raise high-quality Belted Galloways, and contributing to the growth and development of the breed for years to come.

BELTED GALLOWAY

COUNCIL MEMBER ELECTIONS

MARISA CRAIG (GA)

Marisa Craig resides just south of Atlanta Georgia with her husband Scott. She attended the University of Georgia where she received a Bachelors of Science in Animal Health and a Doctorate in Veterinary Medicine. Marisa owns and operates a multi doctor small animal veterinary hospital. In her spare time, Marisa, her husband, and her two children run Family Roots Farm. Started in 2018, the farm has grown to forty-five breeding cows and specializes in farm to table beef. The Belted Galloway on their farm have been purchased from over a dozen states in order to achieve genetic diversity in the herd. They provide cattle to a local agritourism farm and bring cattle to school events in order to promote the breed and educate youth. Marisa's son showed cattle including Belted Galloways in high school and they have provided heifers for other local youth to show. Marisa showed her heifer in the open show at NAILE in 2022. Elected to the Belted Galloway Society's Council for the first time in 2023, Marisa has been active with the Council as treasurer and a member of the scholarship, Beltie Beef, finance, and annual meeting planning committees. She looks forward to continuing her work on the Council if re-elected for a second term.

MEMBERS CAN VOTE IN 2025 COUNCIL ELECTIONS BY MAIL, ONLINE SURVEY OR IN-PERSON AT THE 2025 BGS ANNUAL MEETING IN ROCKPORT, MAINE. ONLY ONE VOTE PER MEMBERSHIP NUMBER.

Vote for two (3) candidates for terms on the Belted Galloway Society's Council. Additional names may be written in if you wish. The ballot must be faxed/mailed to the office postmarked OCTOBER 13TH, 2025. Return to BGS Office, 151 Nokomis Rd, Corinna, Maine 04928.

ENERGY NEEDS

IN BEEF COW-CALF OPERATIONS

by Kim Mullenix, Ph.D., Professor and Department Head, Auburn University Animal Sciences

One of my mentors, Dr. Darrell Rankins, a Professor Emeritus and Retired Beef Extension Specialist in our department, used to highlight the importance of energy in cow-calf operations. This mantra still stands true today, with energy most often being the first most limiting nutrient in beef cattle diets in Southeast operations. Warm-season perennial forages have declined in quality and quantity this time of year while entering a period of winter dormancy. Cool-season perennial grasses, like tall fescue, slow their growth during this time period, then pick back up again in the late winter and early spring.

This leaves a gap in forage production and quality when energy demands of the cow herd are increasing. Cow energy requirements change throughout the year. The nutritional needs of the cow herd is a dynamic situation that operates as a yearly production cycle. Energy needs of beef cattle are commonly expressed as 1) total digestible nutrients (TDN) or 2) net energy for maintenance (NEm). In the Southeast, most forage and feed analysis reports express energy values for these sources as TDN. Total digestible nutrients are the sum of digestible starch, fiber, protein and fat in forage and feedstuffs. Cows do not have a static or “fixed” energy requirement throughout the year. Depending on where a cow is in the production cycle will determine how much of her daily energy need is allotted towards maintenance, lactation, gestation, and/or growth.

The energy needs of cows can be classified as follows:

Maintenance – Cows require nutrients to digest food, move, maintain body temperature and weight, expel waste, and repair tissues on a daily basis. The energy maintenance requirement of a mature cow differs during the dry vs. lactation period. Lactation increases metabolic activity, and maintenance requirements are increased during this time period. Maintenance requirement can be impacted by the environment. For example, increased activity (distance walking to water, forage, etc.) and climatic conditions (hot/humid; cold/wet) influence daily energy needs.

Lactation – The energy requirement of lactation is largely a function of milk yield, fat and protein %. Energy needs for lactation are the greatest during the first 60 days after calving. During the 60 days prior to calving, cow lactation energy requirements begin to increase in preparation for the arrival of the calf. There are also differences between and within breeds that affect milk yield and composition and energy needs for lactation. The greater milk production potential, the greater energy demand on the cow.

ENERGY NEEDS

IN BEEF COW-CALF OPERATIONS

Gestation and Reproduction – Realistically, the energy requirement for gestation is almost always part of the daily energy demand for a mature cow. The gestation length of a cow is 283 days – which equates to almost 10 months out of the year! During early pregnancy, the daily energy requirement is a very small percentage of a cow's daily needs (estimated 0.1% of the energy requirement during the third month postpartum). However, by one month prior to calving, energy demand for gestation increases to 56% of her daily energy requirement. This is because rapid growth of the fetus is occurring prior to calving. After calving, the cow supports lactation needs for the calf and her own maintenance requirement. Shortly after calving, we enter back into the breeding cycle for the cow herd, requiring adequate body condition and maintenance of the cow for successful rebreeding.

This is where energy is the “engine” of the operation – helping us ensure we meet the list of growing needs for the cow for her own maintenance, lactation and reproduction needs.

Growth – For a mature cow, we often don't think about growth as being key factor influencing energy demands. After all, she is fully grown. Instead, the term “growth” refers to the energy needed for a mature cow to recover body tissue energy during different times of the year. For example, after weaning and during the first 6 months of pregnancy represents a time period where body weight gain can be most economically and effectively added to cattle. This coincides with a time period where gestation and lactation demands are low to minimal, meaning that the cow can use her daily energy allotment better for maintenance and body weight gain.

Energy Facts for the Herd

Lactating cows consume more forage compared to gestating cows due to the increased energy demand. As cows get closer to calving, dry matter intake begins to increase to help provide additional nutrition during this time period. As an example, a 1,400-pound cow consuming 2.5% of her mature body weight per day in dry matter during the first 90-days post-calving will eat around 35 pounds of dry matter

Energy needs of first-calf heifers are greater than for mature cows because energy is needed for growth in addition to maintenance and lactation.

Inadequate energy during the last third of gestation and from calving to rebreeding can negatively impact reproductive performance in the herd.

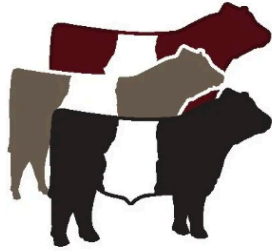

Energy Indicators for the Farm

Body Condition Scoring – A periodic visual appraisal of the cow herd and relative body fat composition can provide a body condition score for cows. Body condition scoring provides an estimate of cow energy reserves. Cows should be maintained in body condition score 5 or greater to have healthy calves and breed back quickly. If cows fall below this level, conception rates and calving interval can be impacted.

Key times to body condition score beef cattle are at weaning, 60 to 90 days prior to calving, at calving, and the beginning of the breeding season.

Historical Records – Specifically, looking at your calving season distribution and reproductive performance in your herd may be an indicator that can provide insight into your nutrition program. The period from calving to rebreeding is a critical time for energy demands in the cow herd and tends to be the time period where cattle may begin to “fall off” in terms of body condition. Management to ensure consistent intake and availability of high quality forage and feed during this time can help maintain cattle during this critical time period.

Forage and Feed Testing – Conducting a forage and feed analysis on supplemental resources used with the herd is critical to ensure energy needs of the cow herd are met on a daily basis. Especially during the winter months, energy can be a limiting factor in cattle diets. This coincides with the time period where we are typically using some hay and/or feed supplement for the herd. Results from these analyses can help us provide targeted supplementation for the herd to better meet their energy demands during a challenging time of the year.

BELTED GALLOWAY SOCIETY

2026 Sire/Donor Catalog Form

The Advertising and Promotional Committee of the Belted Galloway Society is excited to be putting together the 2026 Sire/Donor Catalog exclusively for Belted Galloway cattle. Our first issue was a huge success with over 1500 copies being distributed around the country as well as thousands of hits on the digital version. This catalog is beneficial to the future of the breed, and as such we want to make sure that you include your A.I. sires and embryo donors! The Sire/Donor catalog will include a picture of your sire or donor, up to 2 progeny pictures, a short write up on the animal as well as any data you want to include (birthweight, weaning weight, etc) price per straw/egg and where to purchase. The price to place your animal in the catalog is $50 per bull/donor. After 2 animals listed any additional ads will be discounted to $40 per bull/donor. This catalog will be available online as well as mailed to breeders across the country. If you want to have your bull or donor included in this catalog, please submit this form with payment to Corinna Caron Executive Director at 151 Nokomis Rd Corinna Maine 04928. You can reach out with questions or concerns via email at executivedirector.bgs@gmail.com . The deadline for all submissions is October 1st.

BELTED GALLOWAY

JUNIOR MEMBERSHIP

from Juniors to Leaders

Why Junior Membership Matters

The National Belted Galloway Junior Association is more than a program for young exhibitors — it is the foundation for the future of both the Belted Galloway breed and the Society itself. Junior participation keeps our shows thriving today while preparing tomorrow's leaders, breeders, and advocates.

Building Leaders

Juniors don't just show cattle — they gain experience in leadership, teamwork, and responsibility. Each contest entered, meeting attended, and project completed builds skills that prepare them to one day serve as board members, breeders, and mentors within the Society.

Preparing for Life Beyond the Ring

Junior membership also equips youth with lifelong skills. Public speaking, networking, and teamwork build confidence and professionalism that benefit them in college, careers, and personal life. The work ethic and dedication learned in the barn transfer to every future endeavor.

Preserving the Breed

The future of the Belted Galloway breed depends on the next generation. By participating as juniors and later transitioning into adult members, today's youth ensure that the breed continues to thrive with fresh ideas, strong leadership, and a respect for tradition.

A Lasting Community

Perhaps most importantly, the Junior Association creates friendships and networks that last a lifetime. These connections support not only the individual but also the larger community of the Society.

The National Belted Galloway Junior Association is raising more than exhibitors — it is raising leaders, professionals, and stewards of the breed. Every junior who participates is investing in both their personal future and the future of the Belted Galloway Society.

BELTED GALLOWAY JUNIOR NATIONALS

JUNE 2026

NAILE - OPEN & JUNIOR SHOWS

NOVEMBER 15-19

JUNIOR COUNCIL REPORT

MISSION STATEMENT:

To provide young Belted Galloway cattle enthusiasts a program for developing beef cattle management and leadership skills through our breed-sponsored educational programs at local, state, and national competitions.

The NBGJA cultivates leadership and fellowship through promotion of the Belted Galloway breed for members of the Belted Galloway Society, Inc. who are ages 8-21 years.

The Belted Galloway Junior Association began in late 1996 as the Beltie Youth Group. During 2013, the organization was renamed the Belted Galloway Junior Association by the Council of the Belted Galloway Society, Inc. Shows, education, and activities are sponsored annually by regional Belted Galloway organizations.

The Society recognizes the Kathi Jurkowski Belted Galloway Junior Show as the national show held at the annual North American International Livestock Exposition in Louisville, Kentucky during November. A junior program of activities and contests are held during the NAILE.

The National Belted Galloway Junior Association would like to extend our deepest gratitude to everyone who made this year's Junior National such a memorable success. This event stands as more than just a cattle show. It is a place where friendships are built, skills are sharpened, and the next generation of agricultural leaders step into the spotlight. None of it would be possible without the unwavering support of our sponsors, families, and exhibitors.

To our sponsors, your generous contributions make every detail of this event come together. From awards and educational opportunities to the very ability to host a national gathering, your support provides our juniors with experiences they will carry with them for a lifetime. Your investment ensures that young people have the resources to showcase their cattle, develop leadership skills, and deepen their commitment to the Belted Galloway breed.

To the families, we thank you for the sacrifices you make behind the scenes. The long hours of preparation, the miles traveled, and the encouragement you give your exhibitors are the foundation of their success. Your dedication creates opportunities for your children not only to succeed in the ring, but also to learn responsibility, teamwork, and resilience.

And to the exhibitors, we are so proud of the hard work, determination, and enthusiasm you bring to this event. You are the heart of the Junior National. Whether it's caring for your cattle, helping a fellow exhibitor, or stepping into the show ring with confidence, you remind us all why we are committed to supporting the future of this breed.

Together, sponsors, families, and exhibitors create something extraordinary. The Junior National is more than a showcase of cattle — it is a celebration of community, tradition, and the future of agriculture. Thank you for helping us continue to grow this event and for ensuring that the Belted Galloway breed has a bright and promising future.
